The present set of notes was developed as a result of Higher Algebra courses that I taught during the academic years 1987-88, 1989-90 and 1991-92. The distinctive feature of these notes is that proofs are not supplied. There are two reasons for this. First, I would hope that the serious student who

Higher algebra " the subject of this text " is a far-reaching and natural generalization of the basic school course of elementary algebra. Central to elementary algebra is without doubt the problem of solving equations. The study of equations begins with the very simple case of one equation of the first degree in one unknown. From
