Appropriating Our Identity in Christ “ Eph. 1:3-7. Many Christians gain their identity more from their family background, work or human relationships than they from who they are in Christ. Too many young people gain their identity from the latest fashions, trends or popular expectations from their peers.

Appropriating Our Identity In Christ Sermon by Paul Fritz

In this article we critically analyse our own autobiographical narratives and use the collective story as a format to tell our stories of learning and teaching English in different sociocultural contexts. We discuss how this local, socioculturally situated knowledge can contribute to the knowledge of the discipline and a re-visioning of the field.

The narrative constitution of identity: A relational and network approach MARGARET R. SOMERS University of Michigan This article argues for reconfiguring the study of identity formation through the concept of narrative. It is motivated by two recent but seemingly unrelated developments in social theory and society.
